

PEPperPRINT is a young and innovative biotech company located in Heidelberg, Germany. The company owns a proprietary laser printing technology that enables the generation of high density peptide microarrays for a variety of applications such as antibody epitope mapping or serum antibody profiling. The global customer base includes various pharma and biotech companies as well as universities and research institutes.

In order to strengthen our business in Germany and Europe, for customer support and project acquisition we are looking for a new team member (m/f) for

Business Development

You will be responsible to acquire, manage and coordinate new projects with existing customers, provide administrative and scientific support, acquire new customers and develop new marketing and sales strategies. You will be located in Heidelberg, Germany.

Requirements:

- Degree in biology or biochemistry
- Creativity, excellent communication and presentation skills, self-confident appearance
- Solid understanding and experience in immunological topics and technologies
- Sales experience is a plus
- Fluent in oral and written English and at least basic knowledge in German required (additional foreign languages are a plus)
- Ability to work independently and structured as well as to take over responsibility
- Willingness to travel abroad

Opportunity:

- Excellent development opportunity in a growing and vibrant biotech company
- An interesting and versatile position with a high rate of self-responsibility
- Thorough training on the job
- A dynamic, highly motivated, multidisciplinary and collegial team
- Performance-oriented salary

Please invite you to send your job application including your salary expectations by email to Dr. Volker Stadler (info@pepperprint.com).